W.ieretore the city authorities have decided to buv up all the present street car lines, build new lines and extensions of old ones, equip them electrically, and manage them for the general municipal good The Manchester project has been talked of and debated for many years; in fact ever since the authorities of Joe Chamberlain s town, Birmingham, demonstrated that municipal ownership was a profitable practibility and not a socialistic dream. Tiere is a great deal of hustle of the American sort in the city of Manchester, and so when last vear the matter of municip d owner- ii; was again resurrected the members of the Municip ll Council hacked by tiie Press and the people took hold of the proposition and pushed i rlmngh rapidly. They did not proceed without opposition, however, for the corporations owning the street railway franchises fought vigorously for the extension of their valuable franchises. They made all sorts of offers in the way of reduction of fares, better service and increased remuneration for franchises, but the Council was abdurate. Finally the companies offered to pay into the city treasury twice the sum of money they have done heretofore, but even that bait was not alluring, and they had to relinquish the coveted franchises from which they had made immense sums of money. As the lines under city ownership and management are to be operated electrically,...
