Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Technocracy: Human Instincts in Reconstruction: An Analysis of Urges and Suggestions for Their Direction; National Industrial Management: Practical Suggestions for National Reconstruction; Ways and Means to Gain Industrial Democracy; Skill Economics for Industrial Dem Note - The author showsthat the forces of the four great human instincts - to live, to make, to take, to control - are as essential in moderm social life as at any time in the past. But all of these urges in a living democracy should be controlled without being controlled. To achieve this seeming paradox we must have a great national purpose, and unselfish leadership such as could come through a National Council of Scientists. Mr. William Henry Smyth has been in general practice as a consulting engineer since 1879. He is the inventor of many machines and mechanical devices, including a system of raising water by direct explosion on its surface, the device being known as the direct explosion pump. He has been an engineering expert in many patent cases, and is a frequent contributor to technical journals. As well as a pioneer in mechanics. Mr. Smyth is a pioneer in economics. He is a member of the leading scholarly associations in that field, including the American Economic Association and the Royal Economic Society of Great Britain. Parts I, II and III appeared originally in Industrial Management of New York. The concluding PartIV has not heretofore been published and will appear exclusively in The Gazette. - Editor. Instincts Control. Instincts are the most persistent human urge factors. Seemingly, they are less subject to change than even the most unchanging aspects of our physical environment. The Instinct to Live...
